100YLA Online Conversation Series: Where Do We Go from Here? Innovation and Opportunities (July 30)

Yuen Lecture Series Presents

One Hundred Year Lives in Asia

with Kathleen Cagney

Episode 7:
Where Do We Go from Here?
Innovation and Opportunities
Special Guests: Robert Gertner
Erwin Huang
Ai Sakata

Today, 80 is the new 60! Innovations in healthcare are allowing seniors to be more active than ever before. And they're not only in better health, they also have money to spend. Will they get an advanced degree? Will they start a new business, renovate their dream home or write their memoir? So many new possibilities exist for people who are living to 100. And for today's youth, how many start-ups can they launch before the age of 40, or degrees they might acquire before they are 35? Living a long life in the twenty-first century is creating a plethora of new opportunities.

Join Professor Kate Cagney and her special guests for this last session, Episode 7 of "100 Year Lives in Asia" on July 30 at 8:30pm Hong Kong Time.

Virtual Harper Lecture: Protests and the Pandemic (August 7)

Protests and the Pandemic with Professor Susan Stokes

Why do protests often grow when police use methods to disperse street demonstrators? When US states impose strict voter identification laws to discourage some groups from voting, why do their efforts often fail? Join Professor Susan Stokes to understand how emotions like anger and fear can actually encourage people to participate in politics.
