

Yunhan Bi

Student, Graduate Student-at-Large (GSAL)

Yunhan Bi is a student at the University of Chicago enrolled in the Graduate Student-at-Large (GSAL) program, where she is completing graduate- and undergraduate-level coursework in mathematics, statistics, and quantitative finance. She holds a bachelor's degree in Finance from The Ohio State University and has professional experience working as an analyst at J.P. Morgan Asset Management.

Through the GSAL program, Yunhan has taken advanced courses alongside degree-seeking students in preparation for applications to master's programs in financial mathematics and computational finance. Born and raised in Chongqing, China, Yunhan immigrated to the United States at the age of 10. With her bicultural and bilingual background, she is happy to share her experience with prospective international students, including insights on academics, student life at UChicago, and navigating a new academic and cultural environment.
